

the legend

JUNE 1954

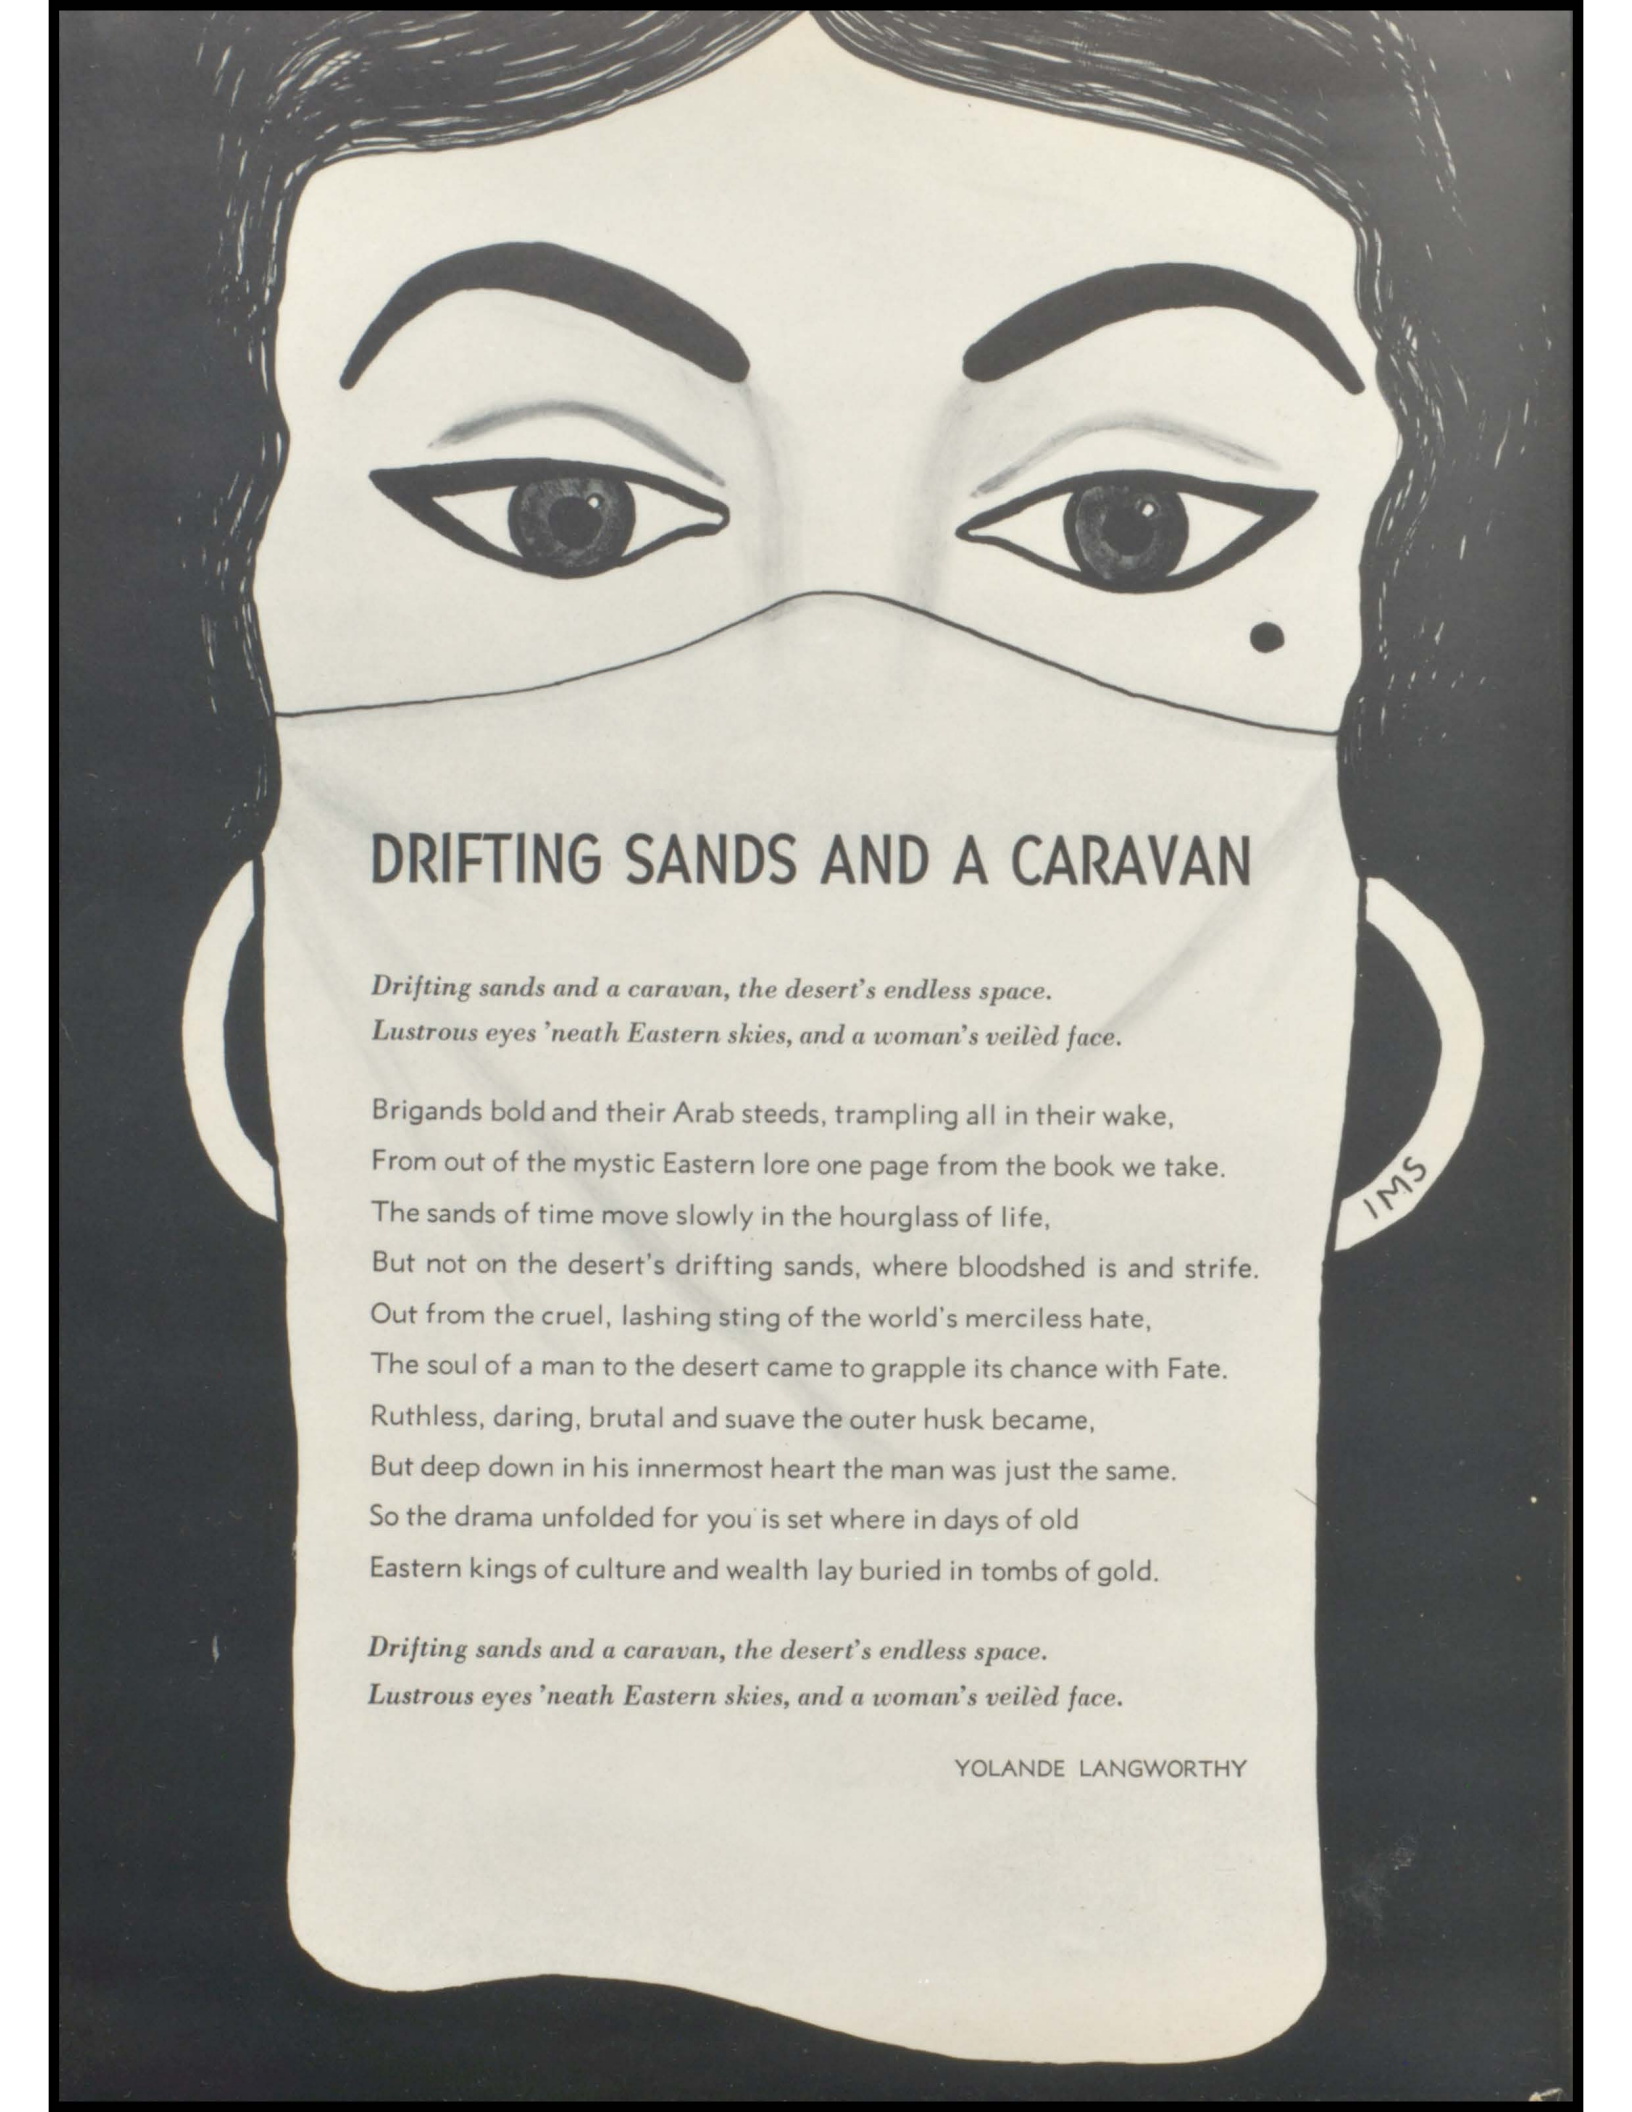

The background of the cover features a large, light gray archway. From the base of the arch, several lines radiate outwards, creating a sunburst or star-like pattern. Two stylized, black-and-white line drawings of men in traditional attire stand on either side of the central text. They are wearing tall, black, conical hats, have beards, and are dressed in long, loose-fitting robes with vertical stripes on the upper chest. They are standing with their arms crossed and feet slightly apart, wearing pointed, slipper-like shoes.

JUNE '54

WEEQUAHIC HIGH SCHOOL
NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

IRWIN STAVITSKY

A stylized illustration of a woman's face, focusing on her eyes and eyebrows. She is wearing a white veil that covers the lower half of her face. The background is dark, and the woman's hair is dark and wavy. The text is centered on the white veil.

DRIFTING SANDS AND A CARAVAN

Drifting sands and a caravan, the desert's endless space.

Lustrous eyes 'neath Eastern skies, and a woman's veiled face.

Brigands bold and their Arab steeds, trampling all in their wake,
From out of the mystic Eastern lore one page from the book we take.
The sands of time move slowly in the hourglass of life,
But not on the desert's drifting sands, where bloodshed is and strife.
Out from the cruel, lashing sting of the world's merciless hate,
The soul of a man to the desert came to grapple its chance with Fate.
Ruthless, daring, brutal and suave the outer husk became,
But deep down in his innermost heart the man was just the same.
So the drama unfolded for you is set where in days of old
Eastern kings of culture and wealth lay buried in tombs of gold.

Drifting sands and a caravan, the desert's endless space.

Lustrous eyes 'neath Eastern skies, and a woman's veiled face.

YOLANDE LANGWORTHY

DEDICATION

In the beginning, chaos prevailed upon the earth in the form of a great yawning abyss where darkness brooded. With the emergence of light a bright new world was revealed. However, like dark storm clouds, remnants of early confusion still hang menacingly over our modern-day civilization.

We, the youth of today, are firmly resolved to shun the dense mists of disillusionment. The age of miracles is not over, except for the faint-of-heart and the indifferent. Aladdin's lamp, a symbol of hope and ideals, is at our command; but only when the tarnish of corruption and greed is polished away will its golden brilliance serve as the guiding spirit of our idealism.

In the grasp of our hands and hearts we hold the inspiration that will refurbish this gleaming beacon. So let us, the Class of June 1954, become "The swift runners who pass on the lamp of life."

MESSAGE TO SENIORS

Michael Conovitz
PRINCIPAL

To the Class of June '54:

During the thousands of years of man's existence on this planet, periods of decimation of human life whether by flood, famine, pestilence or war have been followed by periods of replenishment when humans, according to the Biblical injunction, increased and multiplied. Periods of destruction of the material civilization built up with such great sacrifice have been followed by periods of restoration and rebuilding, often on a grander and more magnificent scale than existed before the holocaust.

So today the population of the world is many times greater than it ever was. The food supply is more plentiful. The tools of production on farm and in factory are hundreds of times more effective. The means of transportation are greater, speedier and more comfortable. Our museums, libraries, schools and colleges are more numerous and more widely patronized than ever before. Many diseases common to man through the ages have been conquered. Superstition and ignorance have been reduced though not by any means eliminated.

There is much more to be done in raising the levels of production and of culture, in conquering disease and—above all—in learning to live together in peace and harmony both at home and abroad.

That is the challenge that faces every single one of us—young and old.

IN MEMORIAM

Frederick H. Riecke

It is with deep regret that the graduating Class of June, 1954, mourns the passing of Mr. Fred Riecke. Respected and honored for his willingness to help out in all situations, he was an inspiring teacher and friend, and his passing is a great loss to Weequahic High School.

SENIOR

THANK YOU

Our yearbook would not be complete without our expression of sincere thanks to Mrs. Edith Glucksman. She has seen us through three of the most important years of our lives. We have been confronted with many problems in our critical years or growth, but her understanding and helpfulness have always guided us. Merci!

About Ben Adhem: A Parody

ABOUT BEN ADHEM: A PARODY

Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw before him Weequahic High,
Stately, reaching toward the sky,
Rich in knowledge, great in name,
In scholarships and sports attaining fame;
And to the students here he said,
"Walk upright, face the hadj* ahead.
Remember, do the best you can,
Follow the path of the righteous man."
The students' answer was uniform,
"We shall push on and weather the storm.
The task is ours, we shall not falter
In the marketplace or on the altar."

The sight then vanished. The very next night
It came again with a great wakening light.
And stood near the others the Lord had blessed;
But, lo! Weequahic's name led all the rest.

—JODY VOLK

*hadj—pilgrimage or sacred journey.

Rubaiyat of the Class of June 1954

Wake! For my clock, which scatter'd into flight
The darkness 'fore him from the Field of Night,
Has rung—today my life begins anew
The Annex Turrets are in sight.

ii

Before the phantom of bell-ringing died,
Me thought a Voice within the Annex cried,
"When all the schoolwork is prepared within,
Why nods the drowsy Freshman outside?"

iii

And, as the late-bell sounded, those who stood before
The building shouted—"Open then the locker!
You know how little while we have to stay,
And, once departed, may return no more."

iv

Now the New Term reviving old Desires,
Conceited 1A's to elevator-pass sales retire,
Where the White Hand of Dr. Melnik on the piano,
Plays notes, and music from our throats suspires.

v

And that inverted wigwam, Weequahic High,
Whereunder crawling, coop'd, to climb we try,
But up is down and down is up
A troubled year for you and I.

vi

Each Morn a thousand Assignments come, you say;
Yes, but where those of yesterday?
This first 2B month brings friends anew
And takes our Sophomore Blues away.

A Comicbook beneath the Desk,
A Jug of Ink, a Fountain Pen, and Thou
Beside me "comparing" on a Bio test
Oh period's end were Paradise enow!

viii

Why, all the Saints and Sages who discuss'd
In the O.B.A. Council so wisely, are thrust
Like Fogel and Bruck sent forth; their learned Words
Are scatter'd; in their Judgment we have put our Trust.

ix

And those who entered their Junior Year,
And those whose eyes held no fear,
Alike to Senior scorn and sky-flung nose are turn'd
As, chided once, men again want flaunted jeers.

x

Up from the Junior Centre through the 3B Gate
They rose, and on the Officers' throne sate;
Shank, Bass, Volk, and Spatz
Unraveled the Knot of Human Fate.

xi

Whether at English class of U.S. One,
Whether the Purdue Test with pass or flunk run,
The Wine of Life Keeps oozing drop by drop,
The Report Card leaves keep falling one by one.

xii

We said let Bergman and B. Cohen keep
The Courts where 3A's gloried and thought deep,
With Volk as secretary and Len Cohen
Collecting Dues, many Profits we did reap.

xiii

A Date with Judy we set our Hearts upon
And saw stars born, one by one
The Curtain rose upon the Stage's Musty face Lighting a little hour or two—was gone!

xiv

And so we elected the capable and the best
That from our Vintage rolling Time had prest
Shank and Barr, Bruck and Fogel for O. B. A.
They one by one stepped silently to the test.

xv

Some for the Glories of the Play
And some sigh for the O. B. A.
But Friedman, Wildman, and Rothschild too
As Sagamore Judges ruled the day.

xvi

There was the Picnic to which we all did go;
There was the Lake through which we all did row;
Some small diversion awhile with Me and Thee
There was—and then the afternoon had flown.

xvii

The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,
Moves on: nor all your Cajoling nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a Mark
Nor all your Tears wash out an F of it.

xviii

Ah, my Friends, cast your Ballot that clears
To-Day of past Regrets and Future Fears:
Bergman, Reiss, Volk, and Cohen
Themselves to lead us through our Final Year.

xix

Come, send for applications, and in the study hall
Your College Boards will make you aprawl!
January ninth has but a little way
To flutter—and the Scores are on to all.

xx

'Tis but a Tent where take our one year rest
We Sultans to the future realms address,
The Torch is passed on the traditional day
And with its honor we are bless'd.

xxi

Alike for those who for the Hop prepar'd
And those who pleasure and work shar'd,
The Artists' Ball from Montmartre came—
A wonderful Evening spent without a care.

xxii

An in our Honor Society Truth and Knowledge grow,
With them the seed of Wisdom did we sow
With Sherman, Bendet, Goldfarb, and Green—
They came to lead us, and like us, must go.

xxiii

A four year's halt—a momentary taste
With noontime films and pleasures we were faced—
And lo!—our phantom Caravan has reach'd
The goal it set out for—on which our dreams are based.

xxiv

And we, that now make merry in the Room
Others left, whom June dresses in new Gowns,
Ourselves we must beyond Weequahic High
Extend—Ourselves to leave a seat—for whom?

xxv

Think, in our batter'd Caravanserai
Whose Portals are alternately Sad and Gay,
How Senior after Senior with his Pomp Remain'd his destined years, and went his way.

xxvi

Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend,
Before we too into Life's dust trend;
Boy into man, and girl to woman
Sans Coke, Sans throng, sans dear teacher and old friend!

A DATE WITH JUDY

A Comedy in Three Acts by Aleen Leslie

DIRECTION BY DAVID BUCHAREST

Standing in the wings after the last ripples of applause had died down and the satisfied voices of the audience seeped through the curtain, I looked back on one of the most exciting experiences in my high school career. From the first day of rehearsals for the parts of Mitzi and Barbara to the moment when the last person left the auditorium, the tension never stopped.

Many eager amateurs forced themselves into strange characters and weird voices when trying out for such parts as Hannah or Mrs. Hotchkiss. There were grumblings and dissatisfied people when the final choices were made. Some thought, "My best friend would be better for the part of Judy," or "He'll never make a good Oogie." Looking back on all this, I now realize how sagacious Mr. Bucharest's selections were. Who could have made a better Judy than Bobby Lipkins, or a more uproariously snoopish clubwoman, Mrs. Schlutzhammer, than Linda Fogel?

A few days later, rehearsals for the cast of sixteen began in earnest. Of course there were "off" days, not everything was a bed of roses. There were the days when the hollering and all the threatening couldn't stop the actors and actresses from laughing at Oogie's comments. There were days when they were ready to walk out after repeating a scene three times in the space of an hour. But there was always the good humor of all and the hot-dogs, French fries and cokes, obtained from Sid's by an emissary, that allowed everyone to relax and save their voices. Lo and behold, one day the furniture arrived. There would be no more piano bench substituted for a sofa, or music stands representing telephone tables, pianos, chairs, tables, and magazine racks. Now walking through the parts meant something new to them. They threw themselves into the play with renewed vigor. The weeks flew by until it was just three days until P-Day.

The sets with their $25 per roll of imported wall paper were in place when Mrs. Bucharest noticed that the paper was very distracting. For a few agonizing moments we thought that it would have to be painted over. Ralph Weisinger and his wonderful stage crew solved that problem as they did many others.

Many last-minute jobs had to be attended to. Our new staircase and woodwork had to be painted. I was elected. So with dungarees on and a paint brush in hand, we tackled the job of painting.

And then before we could realize it, The Day had arrived. Everyone had to come at 6 P. M. in order to be made up or get into costume. Finally at 7:30, they opened the doors and people started to fill the seats. All that could be heard backstage were a few last instructions and prayers given by Mr. Bucharest, the nervous impatient voice of Judy, and Oogie tuning up his voice. No one, not even Randolph, was in a joking mood. Finally the curtain rose. That night we only received 307 laughs compared to 365 laughs, 6 applauds and one whistle (for Steve) on Saturday night.

Everyone was feeling like an experienced actor until 6 P. M. rolled around on Saturday night when all arrived at the school. Then it was the same story. Phyllis was looking for her cigaret holder and Linda for her ribbons. A gimmick thought up was the new actor we introduced into the play. His name was Oscar. In case you don't remember that, Oscar appeared in Act 1, Scene 1. He was the frog that was held with the aid of a string. Judy was absolutely petrified.

Well, there are the trials and tribulations of your cast and helpers in a nutshell. We were all glad to be associated with the "Weequahic Company of Actors" who presented "A Date With Judy", a play that will long be remembered in Weequahic.

Judson's Genies

It all began September tenth, nineteen hundred and fifty-one. In the great auditorium of Weequahic Palace, twenty-nine genies-to-be were gathered here to study for three years the arts and magic of "Geniism". After meeting Grand Sultan Conovitz, and Shapiro, genie-in-charge, we were led up a winding staircase to a tower in the south wing, numbered three hundred eleven.

For the first six months everything was fine. Maxine Solomon, a blonde, mischievous one was chosen head-genie.

One day a terrible storm arose. It swept across the land and tore the roof completely off our tower. It rained so hard, it actually rusted the hair of Marilyn Rozansky and left it a brilliant copper color. It also affected Marlene Douglen, shrinking her an inch or so, and leaving her the cute petite girl we know today.

Immediately the Royal Builders were called in to repair the damages and we were forced to move to a different room. Yes, room one hundred and one was our temporary quarters. Maxine was still head genie and doing a very good job too. We were all coming along just fine, including Irwin Grossman. He was the most musical genie in all the land and his music charmed the whole palace.

We were busy as bees, learning how to appear and disappear and make wishes come true. Especially busy were two blondes and two brunettes: Mimi Rothstein, Barbara Fishman, Roberta Bromberg and Sandra Goldman. This merry quartet had more adventures than Sinbad himself.

By September our tower was fully repaired and we returned to room three eleven in the clouds. Election time rolled around again and Robin Miller was elected head-genie. Many times the tower shook when Robin and Shapiro quarreled. But after all was said and done, they realized it was all in fun.

We were all well on our way to becoming good genies. So anxious to achieve their goals were Elissa Kriegsfeld, Ruth Margulies, and Elaine Kaufman, known to us as the "genie geniuses." Also included in this group are Sherry Goldenberg, Donald Dorst, and Marvin Shapiro; but each in a different way. Sherry's interests ranged from flying carpets to whirling dervishes; Donald was interested in the history of the world, of kings and of kingdoms; and Marvin's interests varied a great deal.

It was now January of nineteen fifty-three and a year and a half had gone by since Weequahic Palace had first received us. Margie Rugg had opened a dancing school for graceful genies in her spare time and was succeeding very nicely. Three of us had become extremely athletic genies; they were Dotty Kaminsky, Sheldon Cohen, and Helen Huffman. Dotty could do wonders with a softball, and while Helen was knocking down tenpins, Shelly was flying down the courtyard with a football. Ira Blumenkranz was now head-genie and doing a splendid job.

It was hard at times keeping Maxine Solomon, Ruth Reinhard and Robin Miller out of trouble but he always managed somehow. The worst was yet to come.

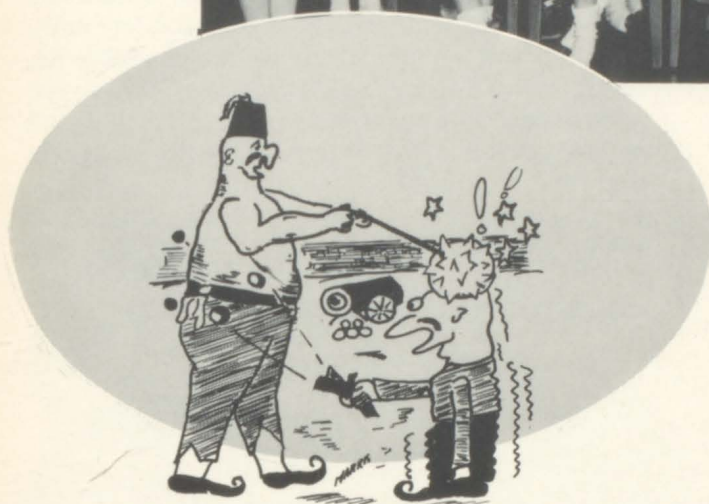

The following months brought bad news to our happy band. We learned that Shapiro, our genie-in-charge, was leaving us to become Ruler of all genies in a far off land. Such sad faces we all had. What was going to become of us? Who was to be our leader now? We all knew we would miss Shapiro terribly, but nothing could be done to keep him with us. Needless to say, Shapiro left, leaving behind him Judson, who was now to be our genie-in-charge.

It was no longer necessary for us to remain in the tower as we had well learned the feat of flying to and from high places, so we moved our quarters to the ground floor to a room with a huge gold number seven.

We chose Sheldon as our head genie who succeeded our musical head genie, Elaine Kaufman. Nancy Saloum had taken up roller skating as a hobby and David Rubin was very much interested in a new thing called radio and television. Marty Goldman, a very stylish genie, had acquired a new style haircut; commonly known as the D. A.

It was now the end of January, nineteen fifty-four, and we had almost completed our training, when once more we were forced to move to a different room, for reasons unknown. We packed up our bags of tricks, our magic lamps, and our flying carpets and flew down the hall. At the head of the line were Diane Steffan, Elaine Zax, Oral Hogue, Donald Allen, and Ellen Bolger, the quieter genies.

In room one we began to pick up where we had left off. There was little we had to learn, but there was still some polishing to do. We were now led by Marvin Shapiro who found us easier to manage than did the previous head genies. The time for departure from Weequahic Palace was growing near. Soon we would all be on our way. Maybe some day our paths will cross as we take to the four winds and the seven seas.

Twardus' Turkish Tumult

In the palace on Chancellor hill in the 101st Chamber, the royal subjects are gathering. King Jerry Rosenbaum reigns. Scribe Harriet Borinsky is called upon to record proceedings. Phyllis Gruschow, Allan Klein and Lynne Friedman blame late arrival on faulty carpets. Audrey Floon, Jean Jellinek, Sylvia Field, Flo Fairberg and "Niecy" Weiner gather in the rear of the room for their daily gab fest. Jack Korbman entertains himself by whistling the latest tune. Burt Weinblatt, champion court wrestler, enters bearing the humorous of humorous Fred Arm. Heralds Linda Zazulia and Nancy Bromberg bring the latest news. Dave Kopin zooming in on his green convertible magic carpet with Bobby Wenig aboard. An unknown enters and alchemists Jerry Mandel, Lillian Mack, and Dorothy Meyer retire to lab to test with beads and borax. Even scholars Jerry Moskowitz, Debby Farber and Nina Urdang are baffled by identical appearance of the twins Barbara and Marilyn Richter. Toby Redlus seems unaffected by the merrymaking of Judy Waldorf and Glenda Wohfeiler. Floyd Jayson is enjoying only the jest by the latter while Marilyn Tanner is gleefully taking it all in. Gloria Devor's reserved manner keeps everybody guessing. Suddenly the tumult is broken by the voice of our sultan Mrs. Twardus, "If this homeroom doesn't get quiet, you'll all come for detention.!!!"

Mazaica's Mohammeds

Enter, oh ye mortals, through these mystic portals into the realm of the great sultan, Ai-Len Cohen, wherein all manner of folk dwell. See thou at the gate, the great and illustrious guards (known as the Khyber Rifles) of the sultan: Ishmael Jerry Rudowsky, Gunga Steve Pollack, Farouk Leon Finkel, and Abdul-Bey Howie Rappaport. If thou wilt but turn to the right thou shalt perceive the mysterious carving upon the wall, placed there many moons ago by the former sultan of the palace, Hassim-Amed-Charlie Printz. Accosting us suddenly is the ancient and learned soothsayer, Sabrina Ruth Dewton, who was acclaimed by the sultan after she successfully predicted the engagements of Fatima Beatrice Rubin, Ishmaella Phyllis Goldberg and Yolanda Jewel Babst. Venturing further, one is confronted by the illustrious Gabriella Paula Green, star saleswoman for the greatest newspaper in the kingdom, the Calum-bey-Met. Now thou standest before the palace, built many years ago by the same architect who built the pyramids at Gizeh, Bairunas Bob Bergman. Walking in and to the right thou gazeth upon the marvelous dancing girls handpicked by the sultan himself (whose wondrous beauty and divine forms have even been heard of in the far off kingdom of Kublai Ronnie Kaye)—Pat Reinmeller, Myrna Blake, Lila Pochter, Jeryl Lehner, and Trudy Seiden. Passing by these beauties, thou perceivest a small room wherein dwells a tiny slip of a blonde, Harajda Barbara Hill, whose main duty is to read the Bible to the sultan each morning. All of a sudden thou seest the acrobats of the sultan, led by the supple and graceful Mai-ron Myron Shulman assisted by his three exotic partners, Myrna Panitch, Judy Okum, and Annette Aronowitz. We stand now in the throne room of the sultan and we see many females standing about him ready to do his bidding. There is Feliz Potash with a finger bowl, Linnmora Goldberg with a comb and brush to comb her sacred sultan's blessed hair, the charming Eunice San Giacomo, who merely hold hands with the sultan, and Salome Loretta Sommers who does absolutely nothing but stand in front of the sultan, removing her several veils. Ah, but look what comes in now, the great magician Foodini Harvey Kaunitz, who will perform an astounding feat: to make the matron of the firl's recreation activities Mah-zaik-ah, fade away. This is what we must do, for old tourist do not die, they just fade away.

Schwartz' Sheiks

Oppressed by the pungent fumes of the 14 Bus and the rush of the Weequahic Tribes, the Sheiks were finally gathered at Oasis 119 by their most honored leader, Meyer Schwartz. The clatter of camels could be heard as the late ones (Fran Wachsmann, Eva Dier, Joyce Davis and Jo Katz) galloped to their places at 8:31 A.M. The flutter of his most-honored-one's palm leaf could be heard over the entire oasis as he flapped for order. There was work to be done. First, Marv Spatz, Number One Sheik, led us in our prayers to the mighty Allah. The most sacred task finished, we opened the oasis for business.

In the middle of the oasis, Lois Grossman, Ted Levine, and Hank Newman can be seen gathered in a forum over their last-minute Hebrew hieroglyphics, while Lenny Robinowitz and his assistant Frank Suchwala let the Sahara breezes sweep through the open tent flaps. The presence of Eileen Buchsbum and Bobby Schartoff is noticeable as the two ponder over Spanish synonyms.

Far across the Sahara can be heard the frequent cry of the beggars (Myrna Schnirman, Ruth Goldfarb, Sandy Schenkel and Arty Novom) calling for their daily ration of Damsel Beverly Abramowitz's gums and myrrhs (peppermint-flavored.) The ever errant camels (Donny Herman, Bob Murphy, Harvey "Tony" Seigelbaum, Ted Sobo, Marcia Claire, Harry Howard, and Shirley Meyerson,) make it difficult for Judie Wildman to count noses of the sheiks. In contrast to these nomads, we have with us our fleet-footed land racers, Billy Rothschild and Herbie Sonnabend, and our own star fish of the oasis pool, Buddy Seligsohn.

Sparkling as the waters of the Nile is the pin worn by Ethel Lefkowitz as its gleam catches fire in the brilliance of Joan Princer's eyes.

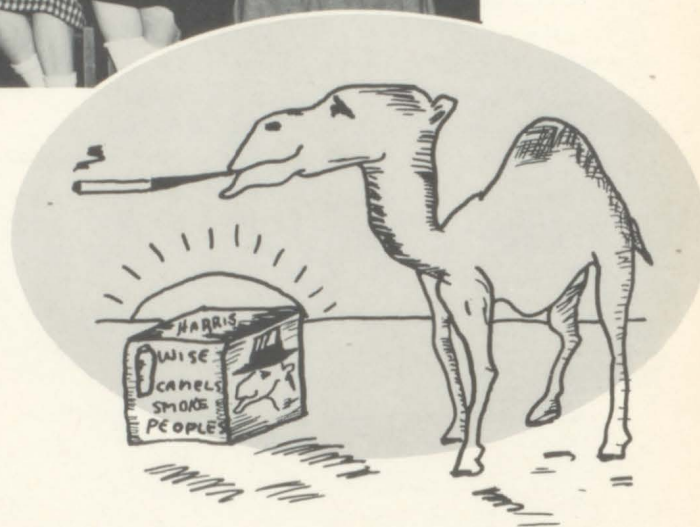

Everyone is at his best as we end our sojourn through 119 and continue on our way through the sands of time. However, before we say good-bye we leave you with this one parting wish: "May Allah be with you always."

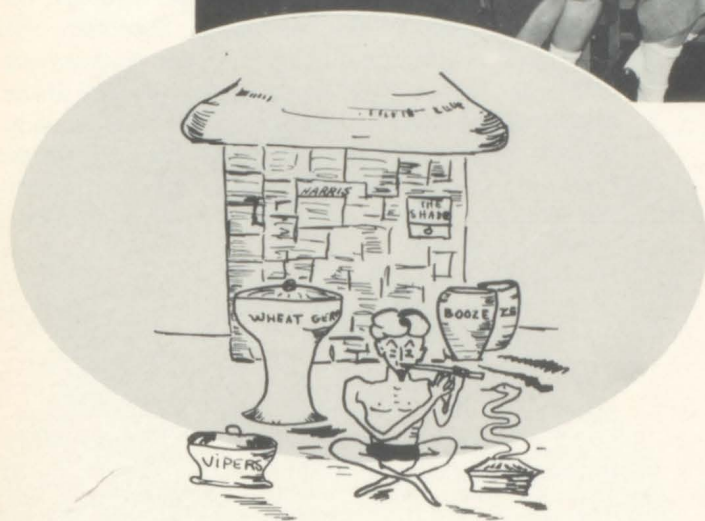

Driscoll's Dromedaries

The traffic was extremely congested for all models of carpets were flying that day. In the marketplace many notables appeared, the Sultan of Swat, Maharajah of Magador, and the Sheik of Araby. A very special and important visitor was expected from a far off and mysterious land, and the gold nailed rugs were laid out for him. At last he arrived and happy the moment came. The lanky, bearded stranger was to deliver a most important and indeed memorable speech.

He began, "Honored ones and Ali Baba and her twenty-nine thieves. What I am about to tell you occurred not four-score and seven years ago, but three years ago, when homeroom one-twenty-seven was conceived in frolic and dedicated to the proposition that all 127's were created micshievous. Then we were engaged in a great mental strife testing whether that Linda Fogel was so detained at and so dedicated to Weequahic that she was equipped for winning all cases put before her. Thelma Rosenbloom and Rose Dessau have come to dedicate a late slip as a final resting place for those bells who here gave their buzzes at 8:30 A.M. that they might be tardy. It is altogether fitting and proper that Alan Barnett should be henchman for the big boss. But in a "Fred Anker sense" he cannot give up the fifth amendment so easily as Phyllis Orlans allows herself to give in to Miss Driscoll's arguments. Rita Beck and Bernice Weissman cannot doom their secret letters of lively information crawling on the floor. The brave Wrecia Ford erasing the A. W. O. L. marks which Edward Kent and Thomas Regenzeck struggled over has succeeded far above fire chief's power to extinguish or combust. The world will little note nor long remember how Judie Goldfarb and Jody Volk plotted attempts to overthrow the government, but it can never be forgotten how with the aid of other grizzlies, they many times were successful. It is for Jay Tabatchnick, heir to the pickle-studded herring throne, rather than for Stuart Stark, to be dedicated to the unfinished task of breaking the quarter-mile record, which Alan Greene so nobly helped by opening the windows. It is rather for Ruth Shapiro to be dedicated to the great task of sterilizing the sterilizer (commonly called the sink), that from morning notices we take increased confusion to which Richard Rosenthal and Renee Rosenthal contributed so much, that Geraldine Farkas, Eleanor Glatt, Leni Greenfield, Joel Kaplan, Sandra Mazur, Helaine Kuperman, Paul Seligman, Gloria Yrizany, Frances Langbard, Marcia Klein here highly resolve that these errors were not in vain, that the threshold under our history shall have a new litter of cubs, and that ambitions of 127'ers, by old 127'ers and handed down to new 127'ers shall not perish from Weequahic High.

Butler's Bazaar

In Arabia it is the holiday season and the bazaar is filled with imports from all over the world. People flutter by on foot or ride on camels, looking into the booths for things to bring home to their family. A noticeable figure, going around from stand to stand checking on the sales and seeing that everything runs smoothly, is Mrs. Butler.

After checking with Gail Drezner to find out if all the invitations to the bazaar were sent, she stops at the booth where strange sticks are turning in time to music played by Linda Cantor. These metal objects (otherwise known as batons) spin with graceful ease in the hands of Annette Viscido and Sandy Levine, who are all decked out in their twirling finery.

In the next stop a sporting event from another land is taking place while Mindy Shain cheers Arty Drucks on to win the basketball trophy. Gerald Simpson, great Thespian that he is, re-enacts his part in "A Date With Judy" for the enjoyment of Sylvia Danenberg, Dolores Kirshner, and Stuart Yablick.

As Mrs. Butler ploughs her way through the crowds she notices the portrait of Phyllis Gralla, which Manfred Wilner is drawing to an exact likeness. The bazaar's singing star, Louise LaPorta, is practicing the scales while court is in session nearby. Hizzonor Judge Martin Friedman presides over his jury consisting of Fred Ofak, Inez Kasen, John Ondo, Connie McMann and Paul Mann. The first case before the court is Rothstein versus Hilf. Paul we find has violated the law compelling him to wait for Marilyn each morning to ride her on his Camel to the market place. Since he stated it was an oversight on his part, the case was closed.

In the next case, Elaine Feldblum, banker of Homeroom 213, charges the students with not saving money. It is decided that the case should be brought to a higher court and considered closed in this one.

Outside this booth a commotion is going on, and when Mrs. Butler reaches the scene of the trouble she finds that Jack Yablonsky is having trouble getting his Camel started. He had decided to transport Barbara Kroner and Roberta Luper to the city square where they had intended to get ads for the renowned Calumet. At last, when Jack finally gets started, Mrs. Butler is distracted by a familiar face trying to sell her the New York Times. This girl is none other than our own Anita Goldstein doing her usual job. But since Mrs. Butler had spied Sheila Levy chewing gum on the other side of one of the booths, she had no time to purchase a paper. Barry Reis, Vice President of the groups planning the bazaar, sees Sheila's danger. He swoops her up on his camel only to find that it is too late, and both Sheila and Barry will have to come in for detention.

As the Bazaar closes for an eternity and the students from 213 return on the magic carpet to their normal way of living, they leave us with two words, "Chairs Under."

Deutsch's Djinns

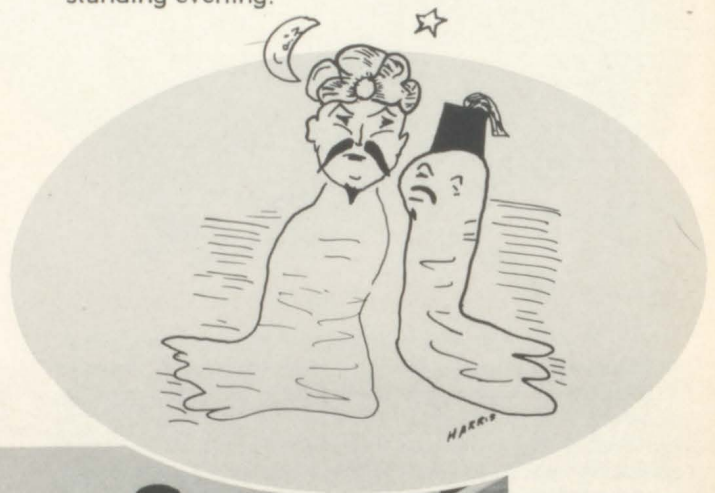

Trying to unfold the future of the Tribesman, a group of wealthy merchants' wives are seen in the gigantic, picturesque castle of Emperor Dicky Harris. Amid all the confusion, George Lomoga, a worthy messenger, appears with a letter in his hand telling of a great event that is scheduled to take place in the Valley of Diamonds for the beautiful Princess, Beverly Miller. Her most honored guest will be the Great Empress Deutsch, who will be accompanied by all the jewels—Charlotte Elsner, Jean Barack, Eleanor Tauber, and Rhona Sherman, women of wisdom and splendor.

The well-to-do merchants, Jerry Summer, Charles Slatnick, and Martin Schulman, are making preparations for the gala event of the year. They are the wealthiest men in Bagdad, and they are close friends to Sultan Henry Bearison, a wise and swarthy Nomad, who will be present.

In the corner of the grand palace, the harem consisting of Marilyn Brinton, Joanne Schauble, Dolores Raymond, and Marta Ignomirillo are speaking to the wise lady of the court, Valerie Surowitz. Marcia Orenstein, the first lady-in-waiting, is selecting an outfit for this festival. Many of the beautiful story-book maidens, Iris Senders, Snoya Fleischman, Shirley Kushner, Bonnie Strauss, and Gloria Kirshen are having the problem of selecting a garment for the ball. Each are trying to outdo the other by having something especially beautiful and uncommon. Our seamstress, Natalie Lipman, soon tries to solve all their problems by applying psychology taught to her during her youth by the great philosopher, Sandra Cohen. She is a very talented and wise young lady, respected for her genius. The task was soon very cleverly completed, and all abided by her decisions.

Arrangements are being made for the out-of-town guests by Sheila Stein. Sheila Bain will be escorted by his majesty on a camel. The royalty, headed by Lynn Marans, will pass through the carpeted streets of Bagdad. Irene Zablotsky will dance and sing to the dulcimers, horns, and zithers. Our Great Emperor will be decked in jeweled attire, and he will be seated at the side of the loveliest lady, Wanda Serafin. At the main table, the Countess Fran Katz will be seated with the gallant Barmecides. All will join in the grand festivities of this outstanding evening.

Block's Brahmins

It is a very hot, dry day as we enter Block's Temple courtyard. Gazing around, we see the multitude of characters gathered there.

To the right of the Mosque we see the booth of Donny Dondershine and Norma Gordon, offering magical elixirs for sale.

Aha! We see in the crowd that famous bearded Sheik, Len Springer. Look! There's that distinguished Arabian scientist and astronomer, Arthur Saponara.

There seems to be a crowd gathering in the center of the bazaar. Yes! It's Madam Block and her exotic dancers composed of Ruth Burt, Esther Eckert, Alice Wah, Barbara Richmond, and Bert Coon. The exotic Terpsichoreans are accompanied by the ecstatic voice of the lovely Devy Barnett and by Arthur Baum and his arrangement of "Caravan."

Beauty seems to be plentiful at Block's Bazaar. There is Hal Rudnick, the eminent exporter and importer, with his business adviser Jerry Elowitz, at their Tapestry stand.

Here comes a camel! It seems to be carrying a great deal of celebrities to our "bazaar". There is Neal Eisenberg and Richard Rosenthal, the engineers who were responsible for the construction of Ali Baba's Cave.

We are in luck today—Leading the camel caravan is our answer to the Sheik of Araby, David Jacobson with his assistant Joe "Aladdin" Mulligan. Overhead is Joel Schwartzman and Ronald Rosenthal and their flying carpets, practicing for the National Flying Meet. Also included in the array of celebrities are the famous Physicians, Nancy Reis, Richard Foxx, and Danny Albert who are employed by the "Sultan" of Bagdad.

As the camel train fades into the desert, we realize that intensity of the sun, so we stroll down to the "oasis" where there is a refreshing pool of water. It seems even Aladdin couldn't have wished for more. There in the pool is Ralph Rothstein and Ronald Geller doing aquatic stunts. Enjoying the coolness of the palm trees are the distinguished alchemists Lois Frankel and Hilda Eskowitz.

By the "beard of Allah" we seem to hear the mystic notes of a flute. It's those two most famous Fakirs—Hal Bruck and Norman Barr. Hal seems to be racing a flying carpet and Norman is lying on a bed of nails. Between the nails, that is).

Refreshed by the coolness of the "oasis" we continue with our excursion. As we walk down the road we catch glimpses of Edward Bendet on his V8 powered-carpet. There is a variety of distinguished characters here today. The Sultan's son's teacher, Harriet Mann is on her way to the Palace conversing to the Sultan's private nurse, Margie Zurka.

Therefore my friends we must end this tale of "Block's Brahmins, which was written by the famous creative writer David "Yehuda Ben" Bass. And as we hear "Muezzin's call to prayer from the Minaret. Salaam Aleikum.

Ostrin's Oasis

Just as it is said that God made man from the dust, I am sure that he made our homeroom out of nothing less active than molten lava. Yes, Ostrin's Oasis is a combination of great athletes, pretty girls, enormous brains, statesmen of renown, famous raiders and runners, and mostly yowling Weequahic desert bedouins.

We were not always Ostrin's Oasis. We started under the rule of that lily-of-the-guidance office, Mrs. Glucksman. The oasis reached its height under Madam Mercurio, famous trades-Queen of the desert.

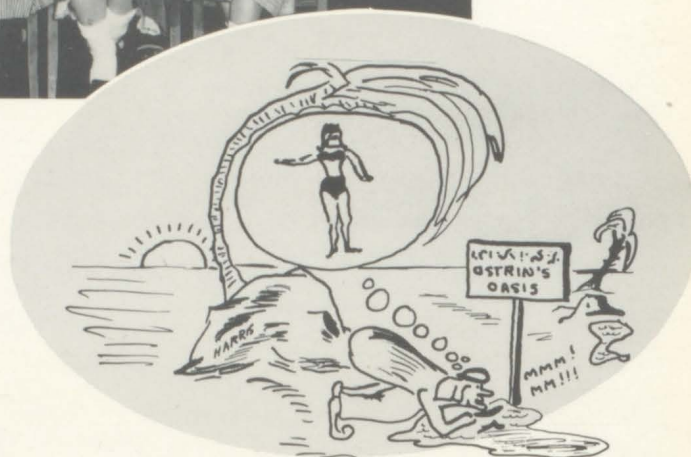

Every morning as the worthy warriors file to their tents you can hear jibbering, studying, scheming, and camel talk.

Our leader for three moons was Pasha Shank, with various assistants from his harem. Our representatives to the Council for Cocheyed Arabs were Ben Kubli Cohen, Saud Solomon, Pasha Shank, and Queen-of-the-hills Ades. Ostrin's Oasis always had a contestant in the tournament for tribal leader. We also have many members of the Harem cheering staff, such as Princess Lola Lasky, Queen-of-the-hills Ades, Vivacious Heller, the Gorgeous queen of the plains Gillick, Cleopatra Kleinman, and Bountiful Beverly Greenfield.

The only time there is complete silence among the bedouins of 307 is when Shah Solometrius Ostrin enters and also when Ben Kubli Cohen reads the Koran.

Of course, we have our radical group of outlaws who oppose discipline, charity, studying, good marks and courtesy. They are led by Carl the Wild One and his lieutenants Bad Burt the Butcher Skolnik, Horrible Harvey Schwartz, Shah of Indianapolis, Terrible Turc Taub, Awful Austraegeer, Wily Howy Walters, Ruthless Rothbard, and also Hercules Howie Smith, lover of animals and Sahara Sharon, champ counter.

Also there are the strong men of the tribe, a privileged outsider can sometimes see these famous men of brawn and bull doing their exercises. There is in this fearful group Arnold The-Terrible-Turk-Taub, prince of the State, Solem Sanford Dreskin, Shah of Cleat, and Awful George Austräger. If it is one of the better days you might view Saudi Ben Ali Beva Karp and his harem of 32. Of course the artisan in our group is the infamous Prince of ab-stact Irwin Stavitsky.

No tribe would be complete without its tribe-crier. In our tribe it is the heathen Manny Newmark, who may be seen ferrying around the homeroom selling his papers and protecting his large harem made up of Tiny Tina Steinberg.

There are also several sports lovers in our group, they worship such teams as the Sahara Harem Raiders or the Gobi Increase Inhalers. These are the brave Martin Shapiro, Sam Shain, Queen-of-the-ticklers, Shady Sue Liebstien, disciple of the princess of curves, Deadly Dot Silver of the French Foreign Legion and also Abdu Patino, caravan scientist and Natalie Friedman, Argyle-queen.

The tax collectors are Jeanette Hendler of money-belt fame, and the mighty mite Marsha Blackman.

Since my Hookah wasted, I must leave, But I must say in conclusion it is the opinion of your humble scribe that it would be hard to duplicate our homeroom even if you had as much time as 1001 Arabian nights.

Russell's Raiders

In response to the mystical words, "Open-Sez me" the portals of Cavern 311 swing wide, (Miss Russell really uses a key but this is supposed to be the "Arabian Nights" and whoever heard of a sheik carrying a keychain????) Ali Baba and his forty thieves used to live here, but you can come in without worrying about your heads or moneybags as they have been replaced by thirty-six sleeping Indians.

As we enter we catch sight of a huge figure in the corner flourishing a gleaming scimitar. It is none other than Frank Barrett, standing guard over last night's poker winnings. Sleeping at her desk with books and paper scattered about is Elaine Greene. Yesterday she mentioned something about not leaving school until her homework was completed. We see Janet Miller and Sondra Saidman busily knitting argyle and plaid socks to send to their respective boyfriends in Newark and Laurelton. Smilin' Fred Gardner, chuckling merrily at a joke he has just told himself, strolls in with Herbie Cohen, Weequahic's best-dressed man.

Wait a second for Joan Curtin. Nina Danenburg has slipped quietly in and is doing some home-budgeting. A "DANGER" sign will be posted "doing-my-homework", because this is catching. The sixth man in was Herbie Schnitzer who looks around, and finally sits down impatiently to wait the arrival of Carol Sheridan. He has some original sweet somethings to whisper in her ear. As Artie Dolgan adjust his beret and suspenders before the mirror in back of the room, Kenneth Gross seizes the moment of silence to tell a joke to James Berkeley. Marty "mousey" Stern, unthinkingly breaks Kenny's heart by giving away the punch line.

It is 8:29 and the familiar sound of slammed lockers and running loafers comes to our ears. With thirty seconds to go, Marion Laskey and Margie Maisano charge in. As Marion heaves a sigh of relief Margie shifts her charm into high gear and commences to borrow some more bus tickets. She still shudders to think of the time she had to buy one.

After the notices, Norman Fox proposes a raffle to help Dr. Lewin dispose of his venerable, dependable Buick.

Carl Unterman, peacefully watching the magic carpets hover over Newark Airport, is disturbed by Joan Schertoff who demands his absence note for Dec. 25. Alicia Axelrad, and Barbara Pollack, are being serenaded by the melodious strains of Saul Porbin's saxophone. Saul may become a martyr to his music as Inez Ohmacht is organizing a lynching party.

The time is now 8:35 and Edie Tabatchnick makes her appearance without a late slip. As she meets the cold gaze of Miss Russell, she innocently claims that she isn't late for homeroom but is unusually early for the first period. Meanwhile, Beverly Graubart and Adele Gordon dash up to Miss Russell and hand in their compositions on "WHY I SHOULDN'T TALK WHILE THE NOTICES ARE BEING READ." In the midst of this, Joan Gelber and Sheila Laub are discussing their latest catastrophies.

While all is confusion, Bobbie Lipkins and Dave Hoffman can be seen poring over the next issue of the Calumet.

The period of bedlam is drawing to an end and it's time for Sesame to close the door, Miss Russell to lock it, and me to stagger to my first period class.

Blank's Brigands

As we enter the last mysterious door of the 1001 nights and peer into weird realms of Aly Blank and his 30 thieves, we are greeted by Head Master Ray Goldfaden. He is deeply engrossed in a conversation with Flossie Gross about her illustrations which are decorating the pads of Scribe Rebecca Klein.

Corrine Forster peers over her veil to speak to Herb Gordon, master of the symbolic chemistry while Lenny Rosenberg and Norma Schachtel are discussing Saturdays tournaments at Unterman colesseum.

A swish of skirts reminds us that Betty Frankle has arrived for a chat, only soon to be on her way again.

Phil "Godfrey" Davison and "Sixth Ward President" Norm Sherman along with their talent sprouts Richie Levinson, "Strong" Ronny Pross, Larry Yorn, and Sid "Whippy Jones" Lehner are "digging" '54 flying-mobiles. Harvey Newman is trying to advertise the exotic foam he serves at the phosphate parlor.

While this is going on, Al Melnik and his pal Gersen Chanowitz are discussing affairs in Trinidad with Linda Fenwick and Pat Geschke. Paul Holub is trying desperately to listen with one ear as he plans future predatory expeditions.

The golden portals open and Millee Kantor enters with her usual morning smile, followed by Tony Fasano winner of the Arabian Cross Country Meet.

"Hold that pose," shouts Al Lehrer. Mike Meyers and Ronny "football" Keefer must cease discussing camel races within the sport shop, giving Sandy Fisher a minute of two to dream another circuit.

The sound of the temple-gong is heard throughout the winding halls heralding the late arrival of Lenny Carfin, who probably couldn't find a parking space for his carpet. Burnette Davis, Esther Sherman, and Gerry Tanenbaum rush in after him and thus we try to begin our morning within the bizarre walls of this alluring room.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the exhausted Class of June 1954, hoping to be of sound mind and body, do hereby declare this to be our Last Will and Testament. We leave the following:

To MR. CONOVITZ—The warmest appreciation for his leadership and guidance and best wishes for the future.

To THE 4B CLASS—The heritage of our sacred torch, with its promises to the future.

To MR. GROSS—Our thanks for his understanding, patience, and able assistance with the Legend.

To MRS. BLOCK—Another super-honor roll homeroom.

To MISS RUSSELL—A life subscription to the Star-Ledger.

To MRS. BUTLER—A portable combination IBM typewriter and incinerator.

To MRS. MAZAICA—An imported Indian tom-tom for marching purposes.

To MRS. DEUTSCH—A book on hieroglyphics for baffled steno students.

To MISS JUDSON—A year's supply of white shoe polish for those "tattle-tale-grey" sneakers.

To MR. SCHWARTZ—A box of cigars for his first grandchild.

To MRS. TWARDUS—A tabulator for future class elections.

To MR. BLANK—A lifetime subscription to the Wall Street Journal.

To MR. OSTRIN—A mass subscription to every forum east of the Mississippi.

To MISS DRISCOLL—A king size can of baby powder and a year's supply of diapers.

To THE GYM DEP'T—One hundred slightly-used sweat suits and a gas mask.

To THE SCIENCE DEP'T—The formula for odorless hydrogen sulphide.

To THE MATH DEP'T—A Roman numeral slide rule.

To THE ENGLISH DEP'T—A be-bop dictionary for all cool cats.

To MISS STEINHOLTZ—Sophomore volunteers for Wee Bethians.

To THE LANGUAGE DEP'T—Greek horses to replace Latin "Ponies."

To MR. LAPENNA AND MR. RUBINFELD—A complete listing of colleges in Upper Siberia for students who want to go away from it all.

To WEEQUAHIC HIGH SCHOOL—WE LEAVE!!!!

MUSINGS FROM MECCA

Mr. Martino: "The class can feel proud of itself, at least from the standpoint of chemistry, for the large number of excellent chemistry students it has produced."

Mr. Castellucio: "The senior 'A's' are not here to stay."

Mr. Eisenberg: "I am sure it is one of the finest classes I have dealt with. They have shown that they are outstanding in and out of school. I am glad to see so many fine men and women go out into the world."

Mr. Lustig: "It is one of the best classes we have ever had."

Mrs. Block: "Those I've had have been good students, cooperative and well-behaved."

Mr. Blank: "My opinion of the class is high. They have proven alert and industrious. They qualify highly as ladies and gentlemen in every sense of the word."

Mr. Gross: "As charming a group of people as we have seen in the past half year."

Miss Undritz: "They are bright but too easygoing."

Mr. Bruder: "From what I hear, from what teachers report, and from those I personally know, they are a particularly well-prepared group with good intelligence and will to participate fully in all their activities."

Mrs. Rous: "Not only did I enjoy teaching them but enjoyed learning from them."

Mr. La Penna: "Judging from the two groups I have had and from contact with students who ask me about college, I would say that the June '54 class is one of the best classes to have left the school from the standpoint of scholarship, interest in college, and certainly of vocational choice."

Mr. Bucharest: "I think the June 1954 class is a credit to Weequahic High School. It contains a maximum of fine, cooperative students and a minimum of troublemakers; I have enjoyed working with them."

Mr. Brennan: "I think it has been one of the finest classes I have seen, not only in student ability but in student personality. We expect some to go to France on the Fulbright Scholarship."

Dr. Lewin: "The two classes of 4A's that I have, include top-notch students."

Taper Capers

The 1953 football season was one that held both surprises and disappointments. Hampered by inexperience and injuries to key players, the Indians enjoyed only partial success. The opening game against South Side resulted in a 19-0 triumph. We weren't able to taste victory again until we smothered West Side, 24-7, but the great day of rejoicing was yet to come! On Thanksgiving Day the Hillside Comets fell before an inspired Weequahic team for the first time in eighteen years. After the final gun had sounded, and the Indians had won, a Hillside player was overheard telling a Comet rooter, "Nobody could've beaten Weequahic today!"

Hats off to Arnie Taub, first Weequahic football player to be named to the All-State team. A courageous, hard-charging guard, Arnie played perhaps his toughest game in a losing cause against Thomas Jefferson in which he lost 12 pounds! It's a small wonder that every opposing lineman feared him.

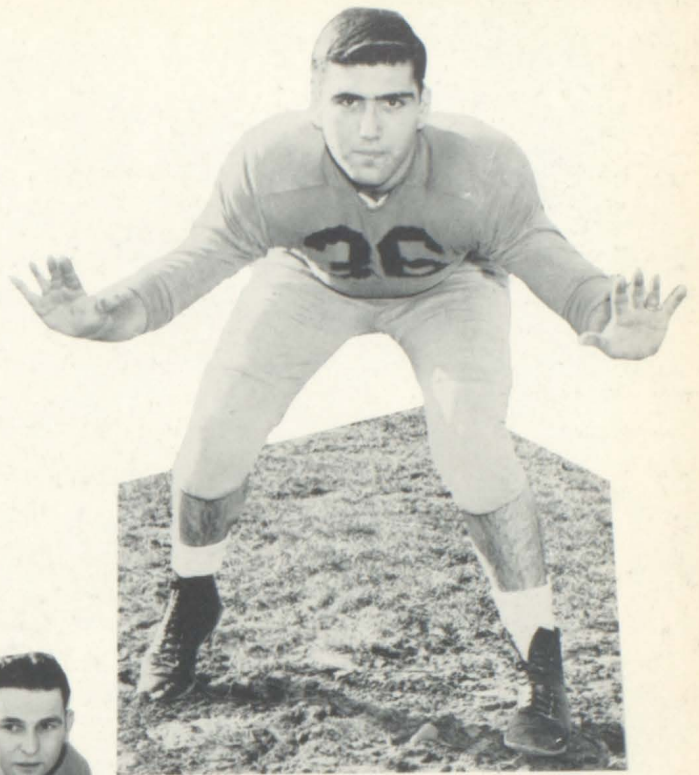

Congratulations to Hal Bruck, who was named to the All-City team and Honorable Mention All-County. His two touchdowns in each the West side and Hillside games will long be remembered.

Ronny Keefer is also deserving of recognition. After suffering a shoulder separation in practice, Ronny came back to be an inspiration to the team, and to gain Honorable Mention on the All-City team.

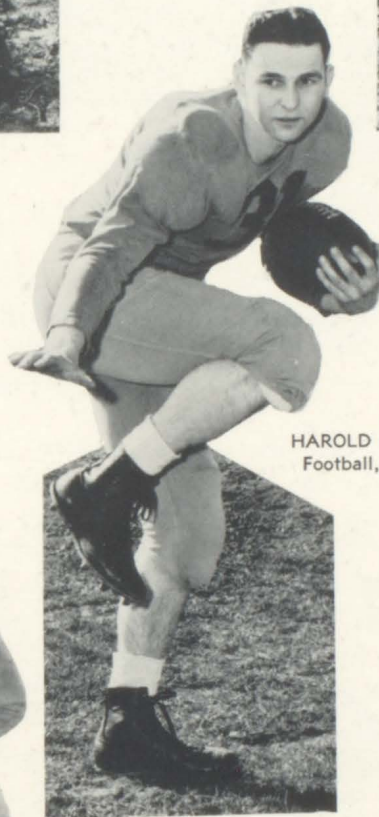

Letter winners Charlie Printz, who tore a cartilage and proved that "you can't keep a good man down," Sandy "the Toe" Dreskin, and Woody Kent contributed to the team that we will always cherish when we look back to "those Senior Days."

BASKETBALL

The 1953-54 basketball team was as unpredictable as the weather. Coach Art Lustig changed the starting team five times during the campaign, and at mid-season he completely changed both offense and defense in an effort to find a winning combination. This seemed to do the trick, for the team improved greatly, finishing the year with an overall record of 7 wins and 8 losses.

Ernie Karp's great accuracy and Jay Tabatchnick's driving lay-ups produced most of the scoring for the Indians. Artie Drucks was the playmaker, and his quick hands and agile movement bothered many an opposing player. The steady play of Arnie Taub and Harvey Kaunitz and the rebounding of Dick Harris and Hank Newman were valuable factors. Karp's fine season of play earned him recognition on the All-City team.

The opening game against South Side, a pre-season favorite for city and county honors, almost resulted in an upset, but the Streaks arose victorious, 51-46. The Indians bounced back the following week to topple St. Benedicts, 61-50. Jay Tabatchnick led the scoring with 19 points.

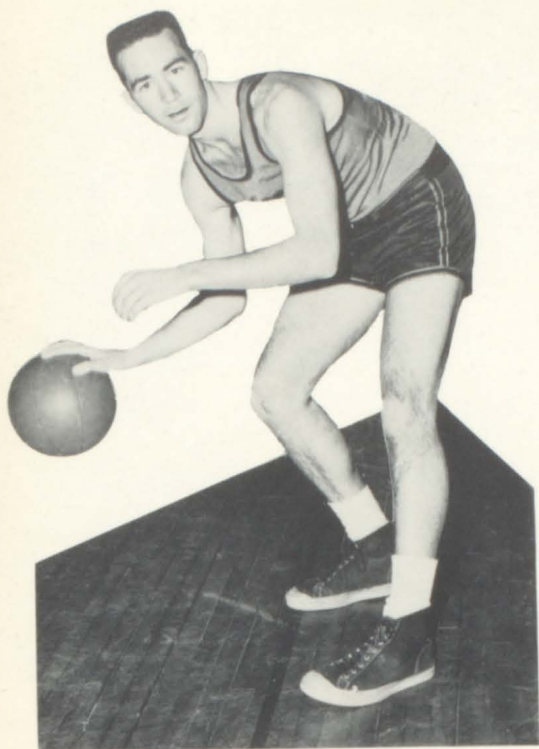

After losses to West Side and Central, the Indians wrote history in defeating the Alumni, 100-81, in Weequahic's first night game. The 100th point, netted by Ernie Karp, was a school record.

Barringer fell easily, but South Side and West Side once again set the Indians back on their heels. It was at this point that the offense and defense were changed.

Barringer fell for the second time with Karp contributing 26 points. Two days later Karp and Tabatchnick sparked a now inspired team to an upset victory over Central.

Thomas Jefferson interrupted the Indians skein, but Hillside and Perth Amboy added to our win column. In the latter game, Ernie scored 32 points, eclipsing the individual school scoring record of 30 points held jointly by Al Lubetkin and Al Merkin.

The Montclair game proved to be a heartbreaking encounter when the Indian cagers played their most brilliant game of the year. Then, a defeat at the hands of Garfield ended the season.

BASEBALL

After a mediocre 1953 season the Indian baseball squad is looking forward to a much better campaign in 1954. Coach Meyer Schwartz, in his second year as Weequahic mentor, is molding his outfield around Arnie Taub, All-City outfielder. Another sure starting outfielder is long-ball hitting Art Novom.

The infield will center around agile Lou La Porta at short stop and Herbie Cohen at first base. Len Cohen, Ron Geller, and the versatile Harvey Kaunitz will fill the other infield positions.

Holding down the catching post will be Sandy Dreskin, one of the finest catchers in city league competition. Outfielders Buddy Seligsohn and Jay Tabatchnick, and hurlers Hank Newman and Fred Gardner complete the senior aggregation.

With a strong veteran team the Weequahic nine is bound to fare quite well in '54.

SWIMMING

The Weequahic swimming team, unbeaten in City League competition, boasted three fine senior natators.

Captain Ralph Rothstein was the sparkplug of the team, swimming primarily in the 100 and 200-yard events, placing high in both events in this year's city meet.

Ronny Geller and Buddy Seligsohn competed mostly in the 40-yard sprint, but both boys graciously swam in longer races when valuable points were needed. Buddy placed third in the 40 in the city meet. Ralph, Buddy, and Ronny combined with another member of the team to come within seven-tenths of a second of breaking the city freestyle record this year.

Cross Country and Track

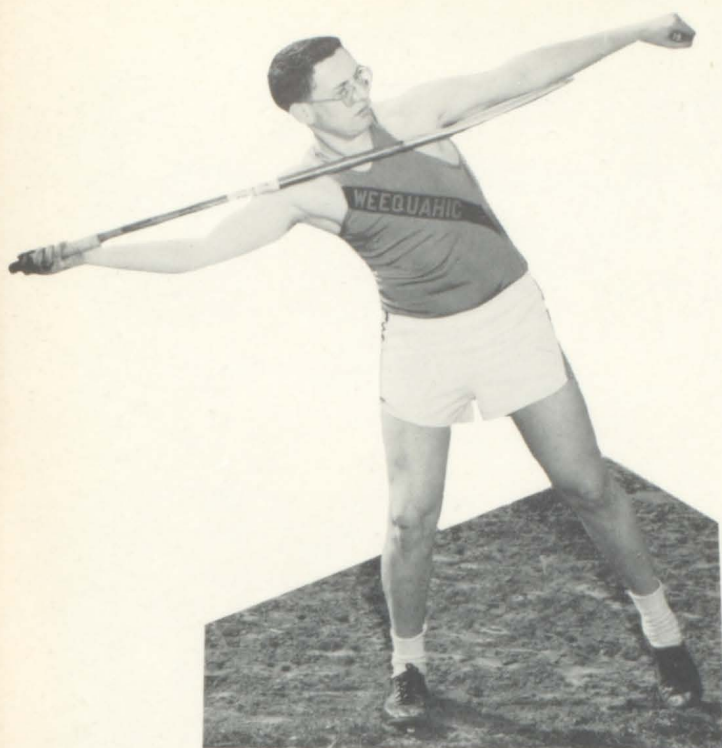

Cross country and track, two of the less-heralded sports at Weequahic, nevertheless produced an array of fine performers.

The harriers opened the 1953 season very strongly against Irvington and continued to show their strength against Central. Then the team was struck by that old nemesis, illness. Stu Stark, co-captain, was struggling through each race with a sore back, and Herb Sonnabend was confined to bed with a virus. This put the responsibility squarely on the shoulders of co-captain Bill Rothschild, who carried the team nobly with assists from Len Springer, Bill Kubic, Tony Fasano, and Dave Hoffman.

The 1954 track team is shaping up nicely as the Legend goes to press. Captained by Stu Stark, one of the finest half-milers in the state, the cinderman are looking forward to a fine season. Returning to the squad are Hal Bruck, crack sprinter and broadjumper; Bill Rothschild, ace distance runner; Bob Bergman and Barry Reiss, top performers in the hurdles and high jump; Herb Sonnabend, middle distance runner; and weight men Ed Kent and Art Dolgan. Len Springer and Buddy Shulman add depth to the team.
